

Coven Therapy

Rowan and Dierdre have a problem: their coven is in need of some serious social therapy due to internal differences and their only hope for a resolution is suddenly unavailable. But another figure arrives as if by divine design and Dierdre's tarot divinations of the Magician and the High Priestess all point to him as the solution to their problems. There is, of course, a rather large catch to the situation: their Celtic-Dianic coven would never accept the assistance of a man, so Rowan and Dierdre must use their own particular skills and sorcery to transform the Magician into the High Priestess they need to save their coven.
